

NEW CARMIAN WITNESSES TO ACCUSE WOMAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—District Attorney Lewis Smith today declared that he had every reason to believe that Florence Carmian was the slayer of Mrs. Louise Bailey in Dr. Carmian's office.

Mr. Smith said that a revolver supposed to be the one used to kill Mrs. Bailey, had been found in a room near the Carmian house. He added:

"I cannot tell you the nature of the new evidence on which I obtained this last indictment. But I am sure it is sufficient to warrant a conviction. I am very sorry for Mrs. Carmian, but I simply had to do so."

Mr. Smith said he had visited the chambers of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to ask for an extraordinary session of the Supreme Court, but the presiding justice was not in town. Mr. Smith said he hopes to have Mrs. Carmian tried in October.

The accused woman spent much of the day reading Dickens as she lay on a couch. She occupies a large room in the private quarters of the warden.

INDOOR SPORTS

SOMETHING NEW IN BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL

A real live baseball story that reads like fiction has turned up in the Braves' camp. How a "millionaire kid" came to the rescue of Stallings' valiant band of league leaders when they most needed a man to clinch the pennant sounds like a magazine yarn. But it's true and you will find the whole story, illustrated, in the sporting section of tomorrow's Boston Sunday American.

Johnny Evers will tell you why the Braves will not crack, and will stay in the fight right to the end.

"Peace and Friendship Among Nations"

The great Peace meeting to be held on Boston Common at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon promises to be the most imposing gathering this city has ever seen. Mayor Curley will preside, and among the speakers will be Governor Walsh, Samuel J. Elder, Judge Michael J. Murray, Rabbi M. M. Eichler, Mrs. Maud Wood Park, Bishop John W. Hamilton, Albert G. Bryant of the World Peace Foundation, Superintendent of Schools Franklin B. Dyer, Ignatius McNulty, president of the Boston Building Trades Council, and William Kobs, President of the Boston Central Labor Union.

Four well-known opera singers will sing peace songs and anthems. There will also be stirring music by a giant band, composed of volunteers from Local No. 9, Boston Music Protective Association.

Everybody attend the meeting! Your presence is needed! Help raise the cry for peace and humanity!

Enlightened Legislation Would Be Better Than Excessive Taxation

The most peaceful nation in the world is to be asked to pay a war tax of a hundred million dollars. The United States is not at war, and is not in reality a sufferer from the European war.

The necessity for this tax is not created wholly by the war in Europe, or even mainly by the war.

The deficit in the income of the United States Government is due partly to the reduction in the amount of the imports into this country, but also largely to a reduction of the tax upon imports into this country.

The reduction in the amount of the imports the party in power at Washington is not responsible for, but the reduction in the amount of the tax on imports the party in power at Washington is responsible for.

The reduction in the amount of foreign imports is not a disadvantage. On the contrary, it is in many respects a distinct benefit to our country. The reduction in the amount of income from these imports is obviously a disadvantage, and a distinct disadvantage at this time.

It would appear, therefore, that the party in power in Washington was not responsible for such benefits as there are in this present situation, but was and is responsible for the disadvantages of the situation.

Why cannot the Democratic party frankly confess that its Free Trade theories are a mistake, have always proved to be a mistake and are now proving to be a mistake?

Why cannot the Democratic party, which has many claims upon popular confidence, abandon the visionary and impractical policies which will, if persisted in, forever deny it popular confidence and support?

War or no war, the Democratic party's tariff policies were proving failures.

Before war in Europe was declared, or even contemplated, the balance of trade was showing immensely against this country. Our export balance had decreased over a quarter of a billion of dollars in seven months.

Gold was being exported in quantity.

The income tax had proved insufficient to compensate for the reduction in the tariff revenues.

Foreign goods were coming into our country, perhaps not in sufficient quantities to raise an adequate governmental revenue under the reduced rate of taxation, but certainly in sufficient quantities to deprive our American manufacturers of their home market and our American laborers of employment.

American men out of employment were parading the streets. American business men in bankruptcy were putting up their shutters.

American factories were closing and discharging their employees, and, instead of America shipping more goods abroad than before the reduction of the tariff, America was importing more and shipping less, with the balance of trade going more and more to our disadvantage.

Then comes the European war, and, through no effort or merit of our own, European goods are withheld from our markets and our home markets are again open to our home manufacturers.

Another consequence of this European war is the opening of foreign markets to our products.

Markets which were formerly supplied with goods from England and France and Germany and Austria will not be supplied from those nations, and must be supplied with goods from the United States.

The advantage of markets is clear and conclusive. Markets are merely the demands for our products. Without the demands there cannot be a sustained supply, and with enlarging demands there must ever be enlarging supply, increasing production, increasing employment and increasing prosperity.

We could have kept our home markets with legitimate protection. We could have gotten enlarged foreign markets with judicious reciprocity.

We did neither.

But what we failed to do for ourselves the war will do for us.

Yet, to take full advantage of the opportunities which the European war offers to this neutral nation, those opportunities should be made as permanent as possible by intelligent legislation and diplomatic negotiation.

If home markets are desirable and advantageous, as they obviously are, let us retain them for American producers by a tariff admittedly for protection.

If foreign markets are advisable and advantageous, as they clearly and surely are, let us retain them and enlarge them for our American manufacturers by reciprocity treaties.

A tariff for revenue only has proven to be a tariff for insufficient revenue only.

A tariff for judicious protection would prove a tariff for sufficient revenue as well.

If a frank policy of judicious protection intelligently coupled with recprocity were adopted by the Democratic party the business men of America could proceed confidently and competently to take advantage of their present unexploited opportunities.

They would know that those opportunities and advantages would not be temporary, but permanent.

They could build factories, not to operate for the period of a war lasting only a few months, but for periods of years, guaranteed by the fostering care of a wise and far-seeing government.

There would then be no need for continual levies of new taxes.

There would then be no occasion for parades of unemployed or business proceedings in bankruptcy.

There would then be no need of foreign wars, or such regrettable calamities to others, for us to glean a prosperity which should be naturally our due.

With our home markets secured through legitimate protection and foreign markets obtained through intelligent reciprocity, our production would be immense and our prosperity correspondingly great.

Then, with a merchant marine to carry our products to all parts of the world and a mighty navy to protect our ships and our shores, America could be in the dominant position which the enterprise and intelligence of its people, if not of its government, entitle it to hold.

Why cannot the Democratic party abandon its theories which have proved false, its policies which have proved fatal?

Why can it not cease forever taxing our producers, forever restricting, restraining and retarding our production? Why can it not embark upon a new and enlightened policy of intelligently encouraging our production, or adequately transporting our production and of constantly enlarging and retaining the markets for our production at home and abroad?

In this way lie progress and prosperity for the party, for the government and for the nation.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

"MANEY BY AMERICANS"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN.

Dear Sir:—Why should it not be compulsory for American ships to have American officers? If we allow American ships to be manned by foreign officers it would decrease wages and drive the Americans from the sea. And, besides, would they be dependable in case of trouble with a foreign power and bring shame to the American flag and bring shame to the American flag and bring shame to the American flag.

W. H. F.

"LET US HAVE PEACE"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN.

Dear Sir:—If, in his splendid editorial, "Let Us Have Peace," you have attracted the keynote of the situation, it is the duty of the United States to do everything in its power to stop the bloody war that is raging throughout Europe. It is a war of sinners, not of the people, who are giving their blood to keep unleashed the crowns of the rulers. It is a cruel and inhuman struggle into which the nations of Europe have been plunged, and all eyes are turned toward the United States to aid the struggle.

The churches should unite in an earnest appeal to the nations involved in the war. L. HERBERT.

"NOT A WOMAN'S WAR"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN.

Dear Sir:—While as a nation we gaze in shocked amazement at the horrors of modern warfare and the bloodshed in Europe, let us remember that the nations so involved are non-governed nations and that the women have been powerless to stem the tide of bloodshed. Women have no control of the machinery of government. The women of all time have placed human life above all material considerations. The mothers of all time, having "passed through the valley of the shadow" to produce the human race, have struggled to preserve it against all harm, against all useless waste.

This being true, it behooves the men of this country, now mercifully free from the old world disaster, to give political equality to their women, to help preserve the peace which is now ours.

EDNA LAWRENCE SPENCER, Cambridge.

"THE COST OF KINGS"

Mr. W. R. Hearst:

Dear Sir:—I wish to personally thank you for the splendid editorial in the AMERICAN, "The Cost of Kings."

If the press throughout the world would speak thus freely and emphatically our present horror would be the least of its kind. Sincerely, Bridgeton, Me. G. H. MACKAY.

The Big Things in REAL LIFE Today

Consider with us a few minutes the big happenings that are going on around us all the time:

The Romances.
The Tragedies.
The great inventions of science and the great discoveries of medicine.

The hate and wars of nations.
The love of man for his fellow-man.

These are the really big things in real life today. And consequently pages and pages of tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN will be devoted to these great vital subjects.

In the great magazine section two pages will be devoted to New Deadly Devices of War.

Showing how man's wonderful genius for mechanical progress has been misdirected toward scientific slaughter and destruction.

A powerful symposium will appear in the Editorial Section, on

How Leading Men of Affairs

Regard America's New Opportunities.

The necessity of quick action to insure for all time the commercial supremacy and prosperity of the United States is urged by Vanderlip, Cortelyou and others.

In higher vein there will appear two magnificently illustrated features on how

Dorothy Russell Beats

Mamma Lillian's Famous Record

Each having acquired Husband No. 4. They would be neck and neck in the matrimonial stakes but for superior speed shown by Daughter's past performances.

How the War Stopped

An International Wedding

"You may marry," said the Kaiser, but suddenly war broke out and Noble Count von Rath and beautiful Cecelia May were married with the Atlantic between them, while six suitors who "also ran" have their revenge.

Considering science for a moment we have:

How Our Minds Digest the Most Important Part of Our Food

Remarkable experiment by a Russian scientist who collects the stomach's psychic juices from dogs and arrives at great conclusions.

How You Can Add Two

Inches to Your Height

Being the story of a stretching device all short men and women will want to read.

Mysterious New Peril That

Threatens Every Fast Train

How tiny flaws which cannot be detected from the outside break the heaviest rails and lead to terrible disasters.

What Makes the Deep

Sea Monsters?

Remarkable experiments by a famous French scientist which shows fish shapes are made by water pressure.

And these are only a few of the big vital stories of absorbing interest which will appear in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

There is also the incomparable Colored Comic Section with the original Katsenjammer Kids on the job.

This is the City LIFE Section which can turn any dull day into a sunny one.

There is the Society Section, with all the important social news of Greater Boston, the whims and foibles of the smart set and the pictures of Society at play, and the brides of the day.

Of course a large number of pages will be devoted to the news of the war, from the AMERICAN'S big staff of experts on the battle fields.

So, the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow is certainly a household necessity.

Order it today to make sure your newsdealer will have enough.

P. S.—Almost forgot to mention "Tee Hee" Powers, the famous cartoonist, has broken into the Colored Comic Section. It's a scream of a picture.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

The largest dry dock in America and one of the largest in the world is building in South Boston? The bottom of the great dry dock, which will be 1,200 feet long, will rest on a solid granite ledge and the Imperator can be docked in it, with nearly 300 feet to spare.

THE DREAM LADY

By CONSTANCE CLARKE

SHE comes alone, out of a tired, pale sky
Lifts here and there with stars, and passing by Sits into uttering ecstasy the night
Where those who wait may watch her out of sight
Heard in her arm she holds her precious store
Of dreams—dreams for the sorrowful, the sore,
A respite from night's agony of hours
Breathed in with scents of slumberous poppy flowers.
Then, who will buy? Her price is not too much—
Purchase the slumber of a tender touch!
Will buy one, though at dawn, awake you start,
Tear wet, pain-wracked with wildly beating heart,
To drag out an interminable day.
And yet the dream is worth it, who will pay?
